The WebSphere Portal Strategy: Platform for Business Innovation

IBM

Lotus

Topics

- WebSphere Portal V6.0: The front end of SOA
- WebSphere Portal Success Stories
- What's currently planned for 2007

Our mission…

Make more people…
more productive…
in the context of what they do…everyday

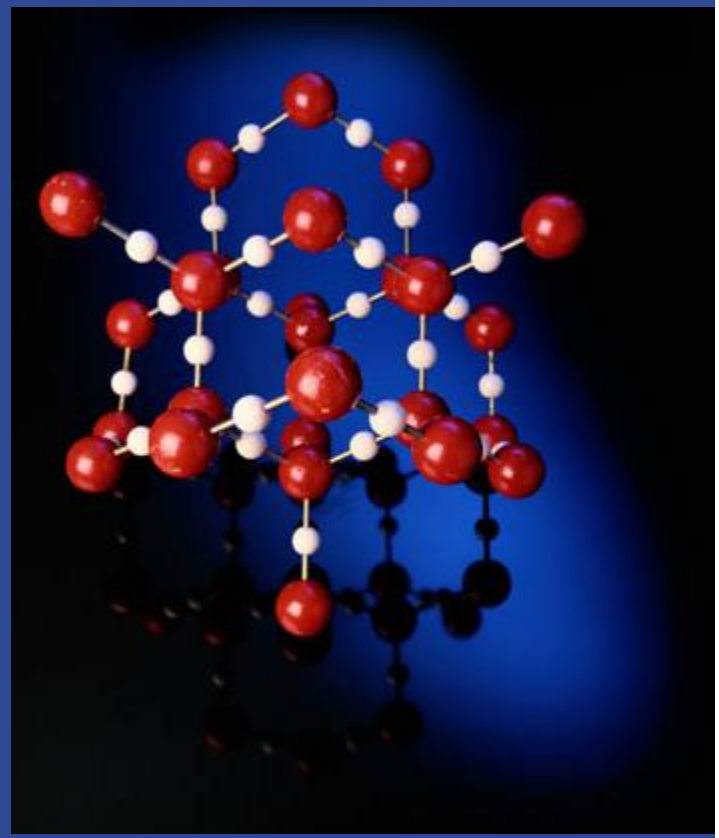
IBM

Lotus

In Context of Business Operations

An on demand business is an enterprise whose business processes—integrated end-to-end across the company and with key partners, suppliers and customers—can respond with speed to any customer demand, market opportunity or external threat.



IBM

Lotus

Service Oriented Architecture: the blueprint for change

“Service-oriented architecture deployments are increasing and becoming a mainstream architectural model for developing services, applications and infrastructures.”

“Effective Web Services and SOBAs Require Management”
Frank Kenney, Gartner
September 28, 2004

Why SOA?

- Flexibility
- Facilitates re-use of existing applications
- Supports effective business process implementations
- Designed for change

IBM

Lotus

Aligns Business and IT goals to grow revenue and contain costs

A Business Problem
The Call Center

- Info from call Router portlet can populate the call center employee's desktop
- Productivity is improved by integrating disparate applications and allowing focus to remain on the customer
- A Composite Application

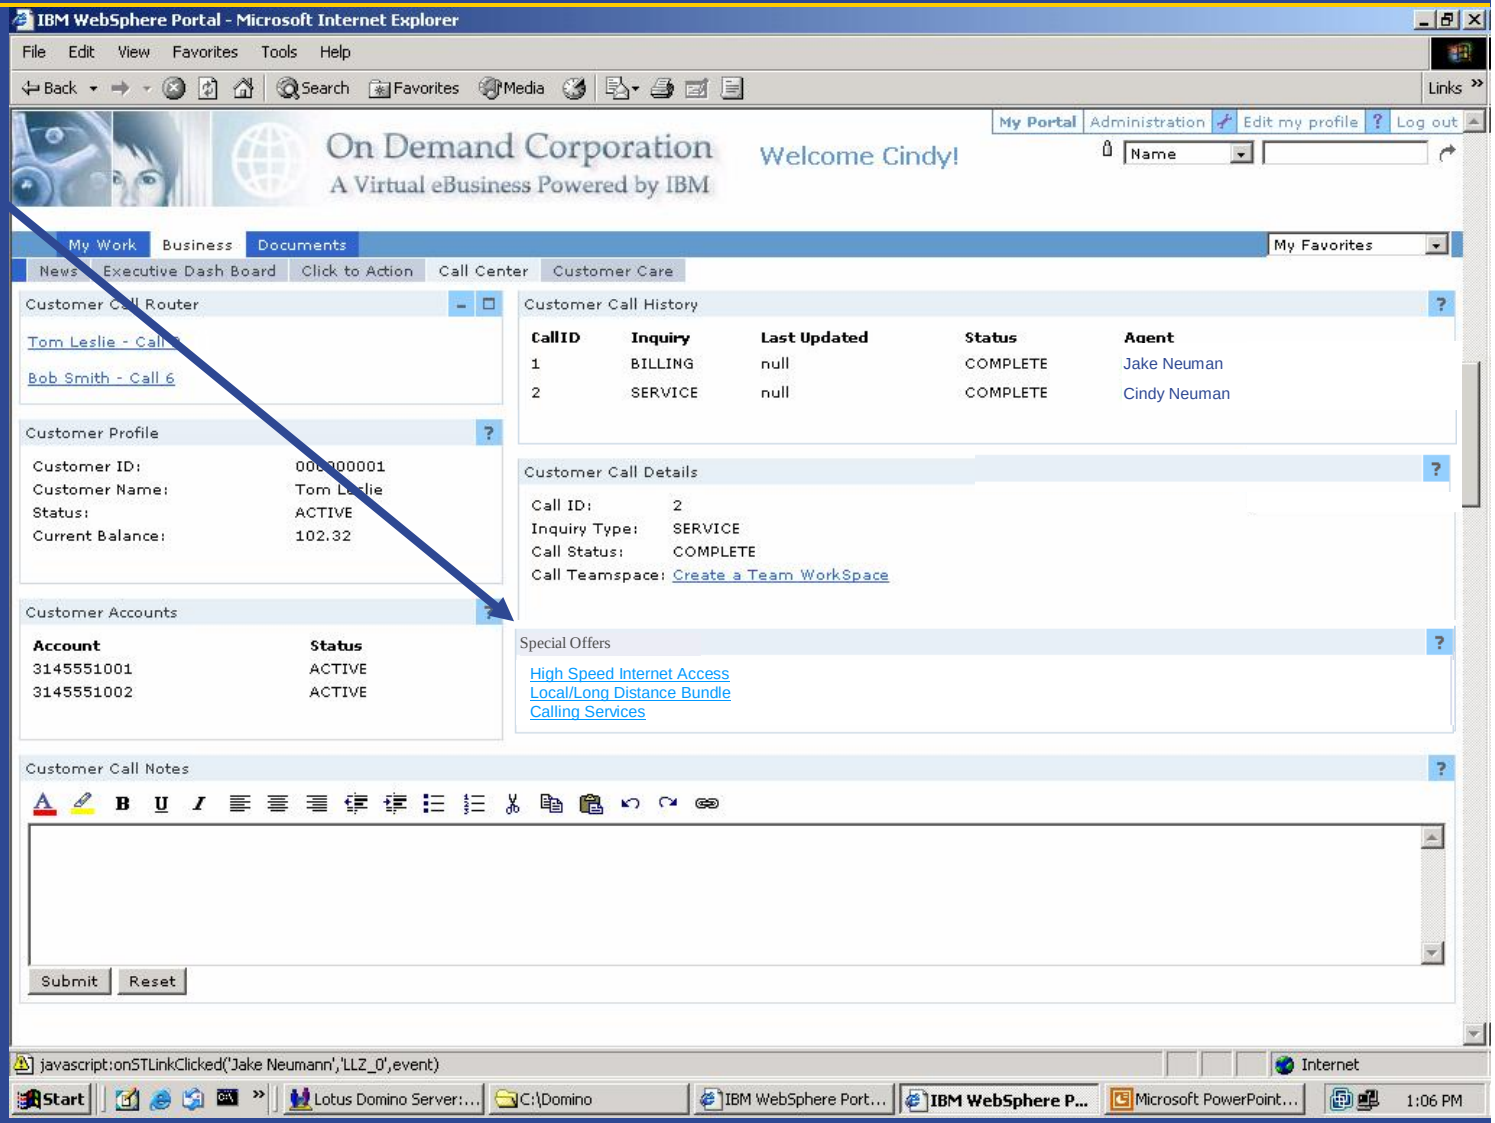
Lotus

New Business Requirement
Increase Sales

- Add the needed component
- "Wire it" into the application
- Composition instead of programming



IBM

Lotus

An Example of Collaboration in Context

- Use Sametime from within a component
- 'Buddy' is in context of application, not people you actually know
- User stays focused on the application

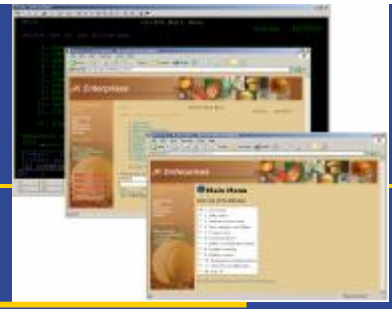
Another Useful Tool

Components can be built with a variety of tools, and developer skills. Components can be built independently from assembly.

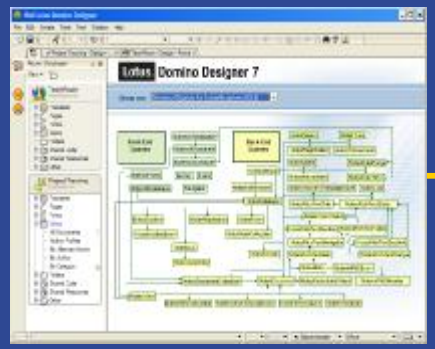
WebPage/WebClipping



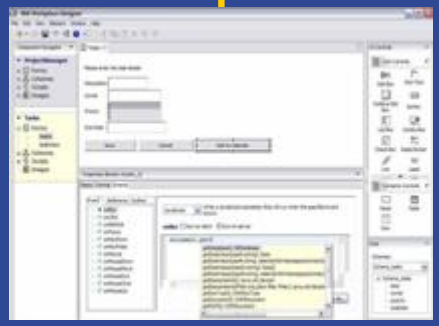
3270 and iSeries screens can be converted to portlets via HATS

Composite built with Portlet Factory

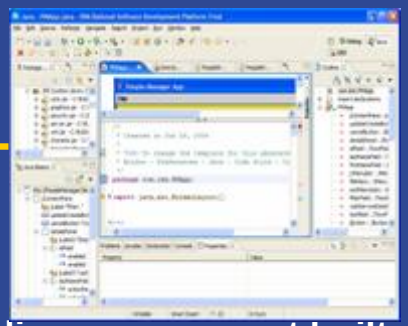
e-forms built with Workplace Forms Designer



Notes applications built with Domino Designer



Collaborative applications built with Lotus Component Designer



Eclipse component built with Rational RAD

WebSphere Portal V6 Big Themes

Extend and Enhance Composite Applications

More Self Service

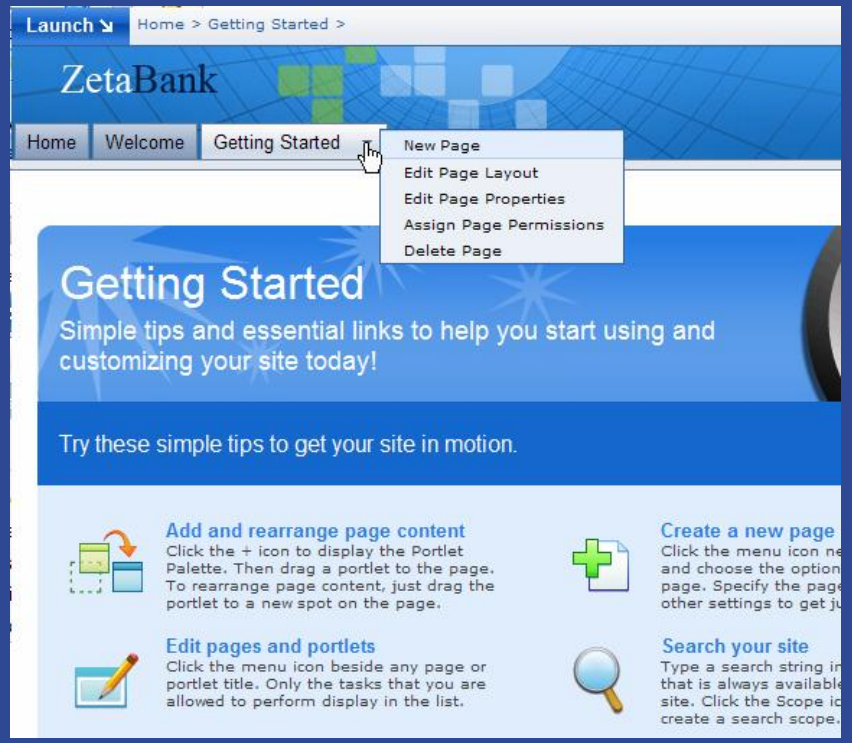
More focus on Content (Web Content Mgmt, Docs and Personalization)

Disconnected Client support

Improved Administration and Operations

New Powerful User Interface

- New Themes & Skins
- Flyout Menus
- Drag & Drop
- Contextual menus

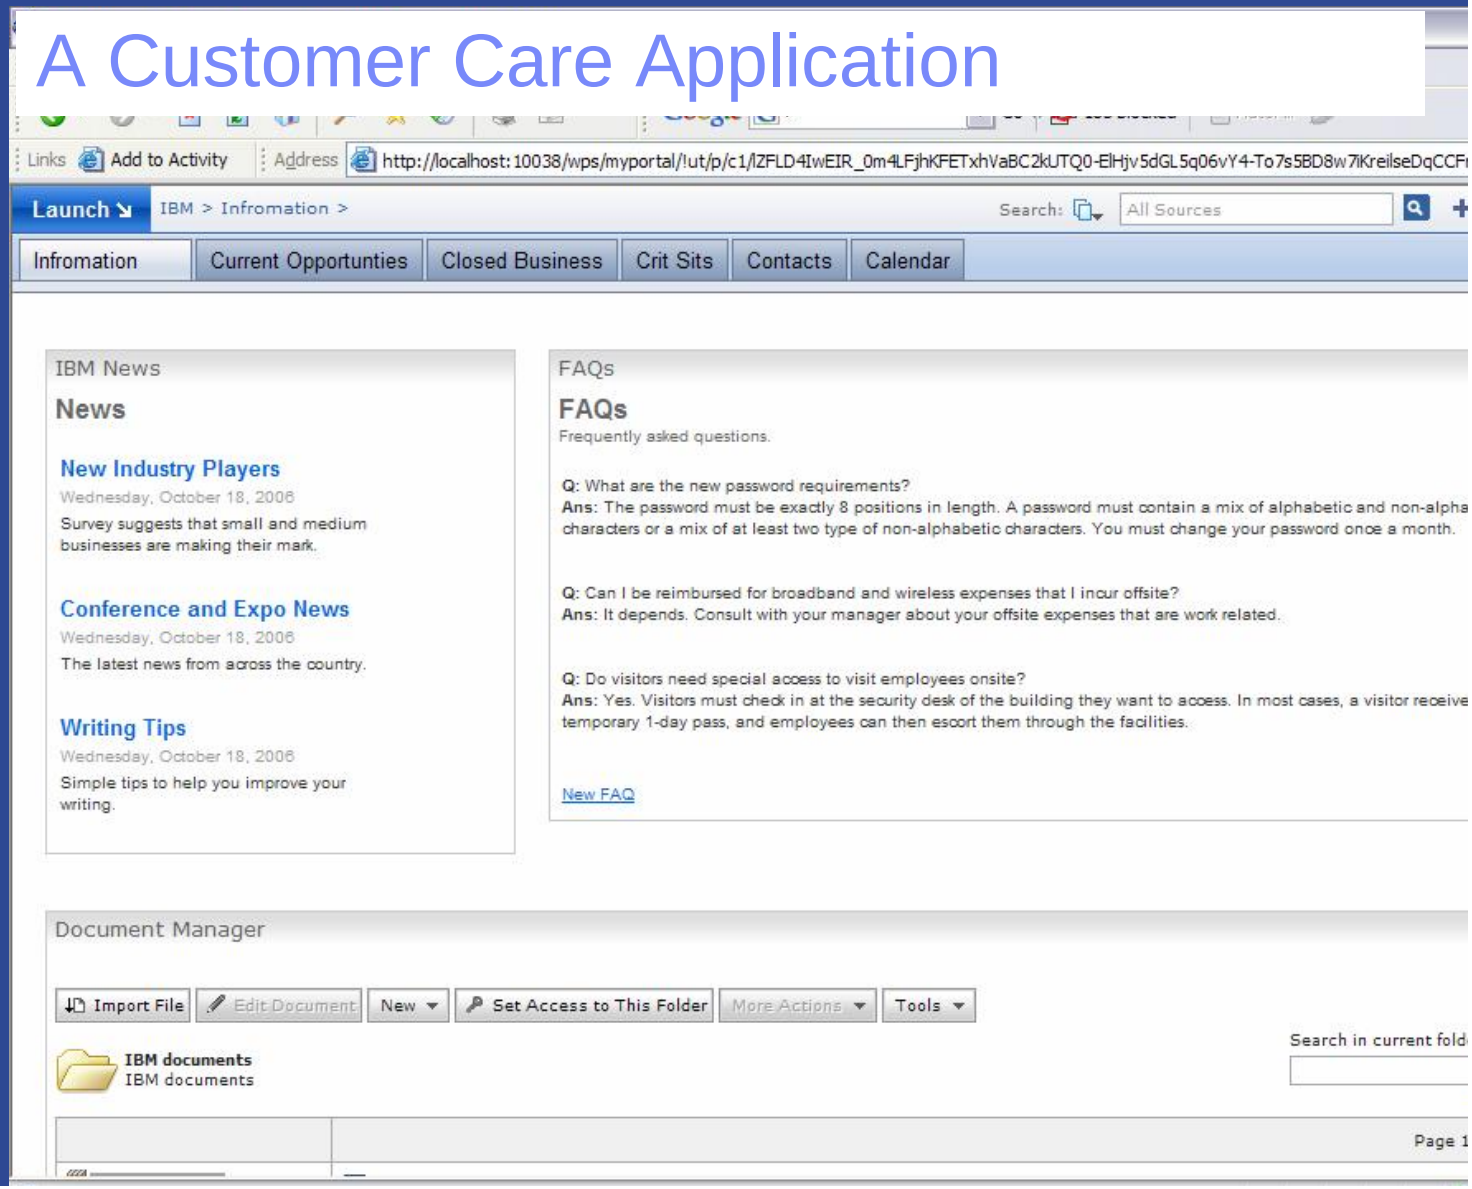


IBM

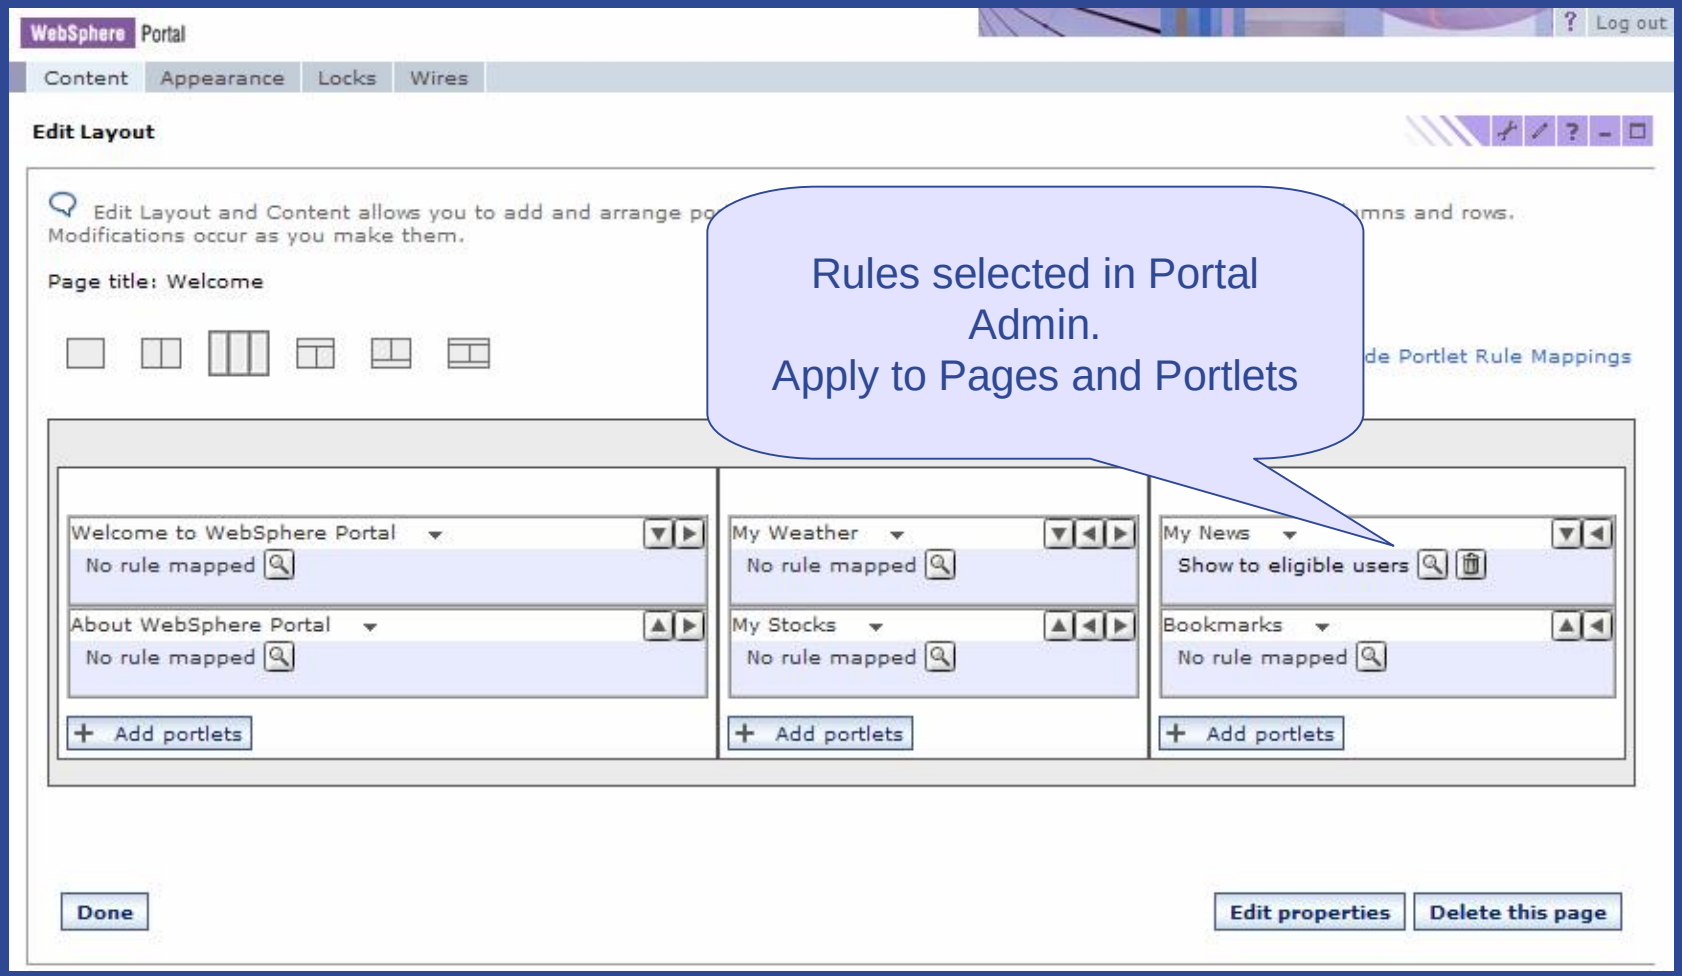
Lotus

Templating

- Some composite applications are instantiated time and time again
- Manually creating these is labor intense
- Templates allow you define the pattern and instantiate over and over

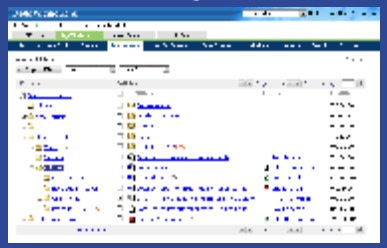


Attribute based personalization

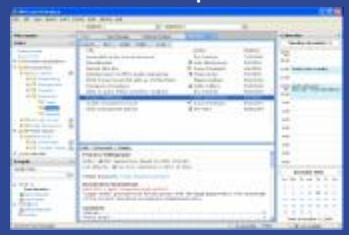


Content Integration

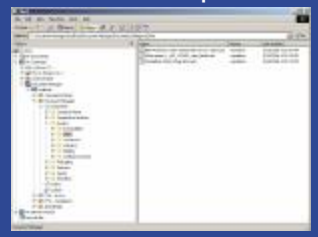
Doc Mgt Portlet



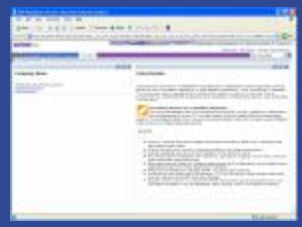
Lotus Expeditor



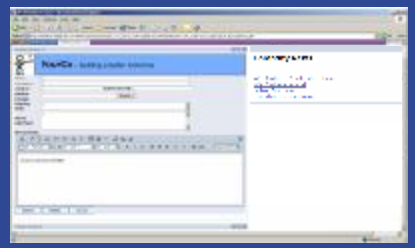
Windows Explorer



WCM



Custom Authoring/Display



Common Document Model Based on SDO for easy tooling

Common Taxonomy for improved navigation and personalization

Common Repository for improved management, re-purposing and search

Extendable to the Enterprise Scale with Filenet

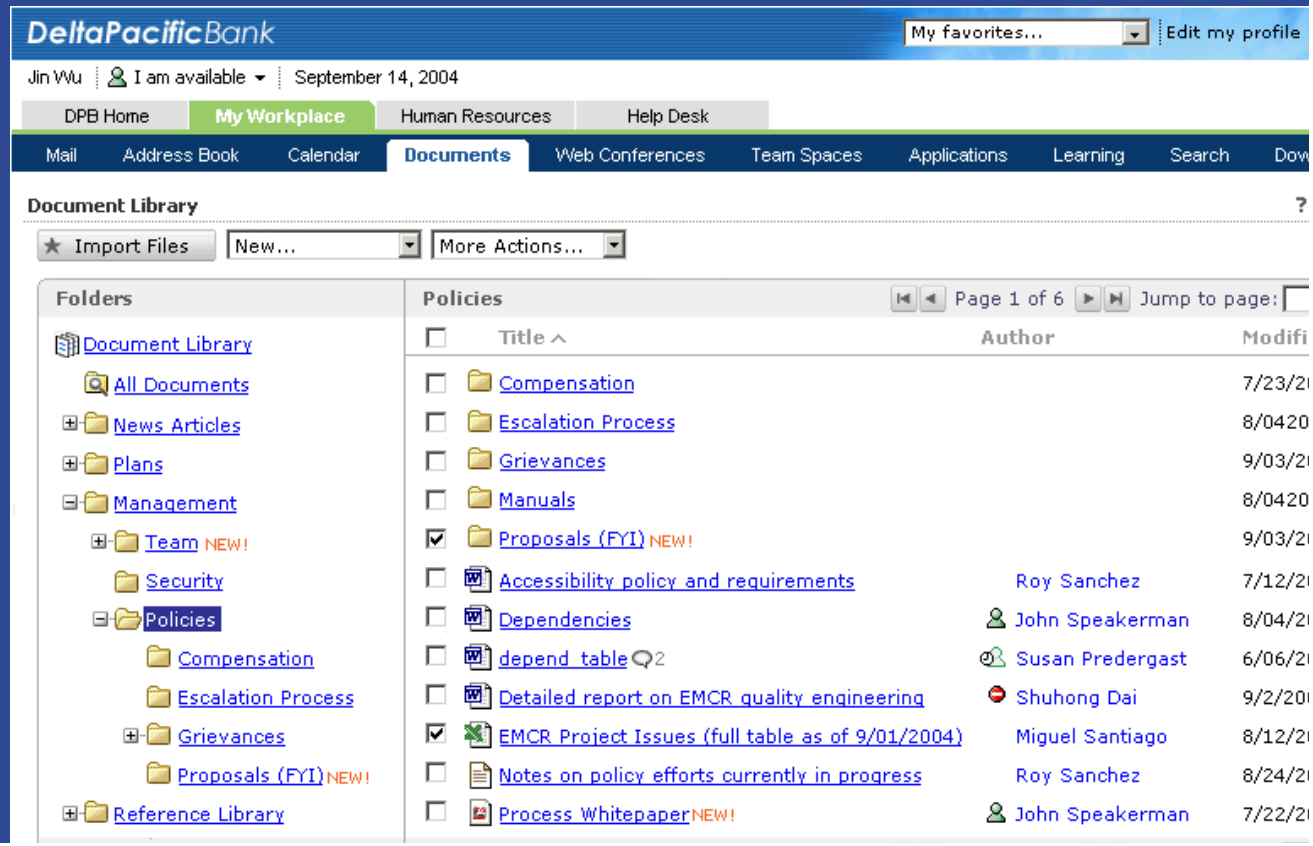
- WebSphere Portal includes an embedded content repository for managing unstructured content, such as web content and document.
- Over time, all of the content applications on portal will share this infrastructure. This will enable you to leverage our out of the box content capabilities within your own content applications using our SDO based content model.
- Common taxonomy will make locating and re-using content easier.
- Our goal is that Content is Content is Content… it doesn't matter where it came from. You should be able to use it where you need to use it.

IBM

Lotus

Portal Document Manager

- Document Management within WebSphere Portal
  - Navigate the customer defined folder hierarchy
  - View, Add, Delete, and Modify documents and folders
- Control Access on folders and documents
- Version documents
- Approve changes via workflow
- Search folders and documents
- 210 Filters for “viewing” documents with out the client installed

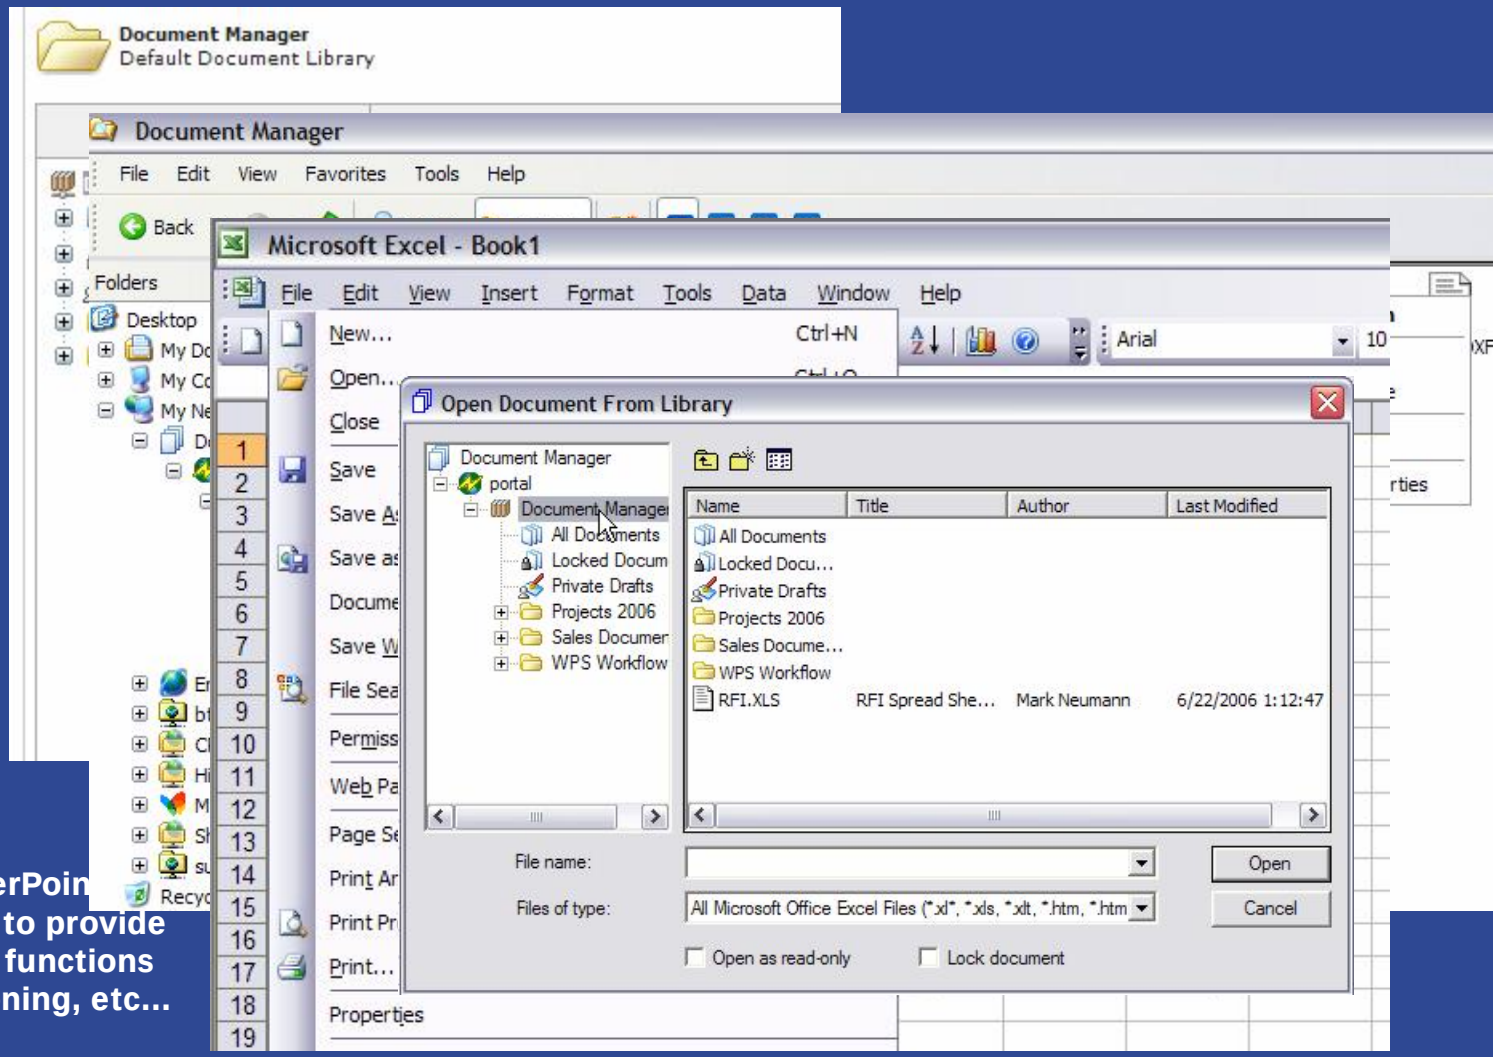


Windows Explorer and Microsoft Office Integration

Windows Explorer extension lets you work with server documents as if they were local files

Files are automatically stored back on the server

Word, Excel, and PowerPoint toolbars are extended to provide direct access to portal functions such as locking, versioning, etc...

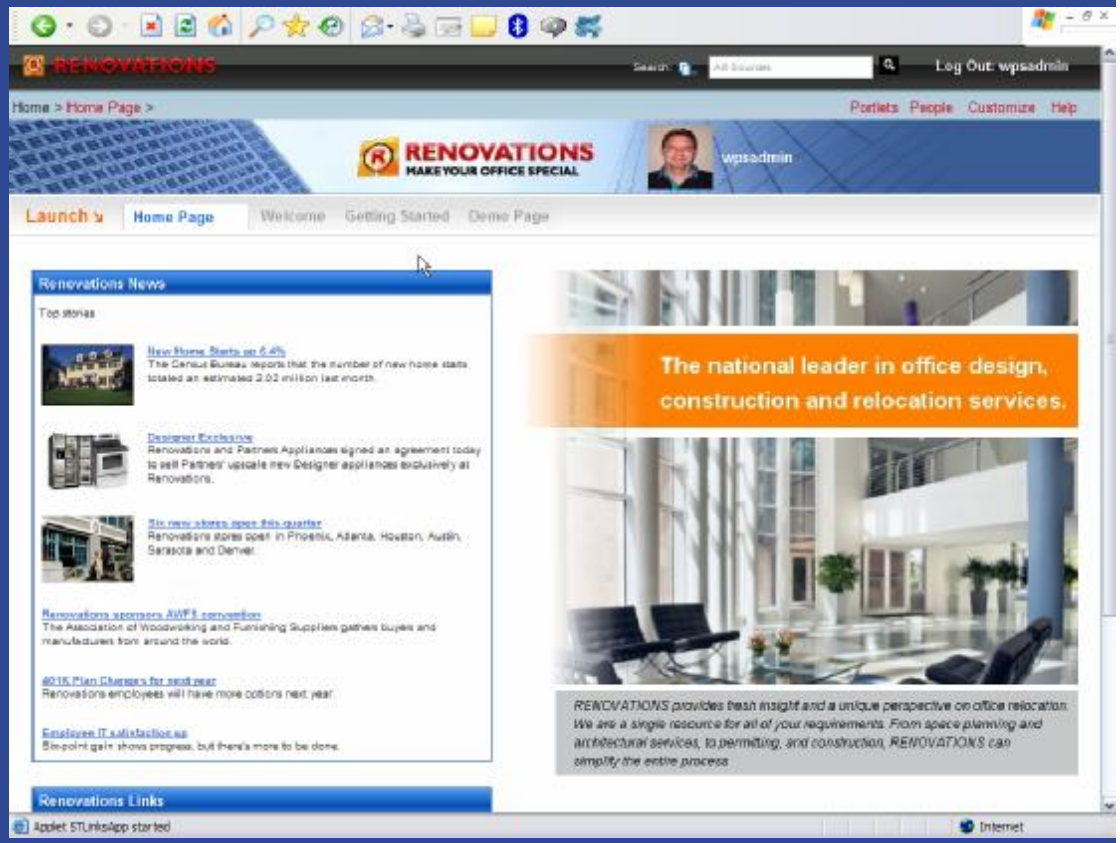


IBM

Lotus

Web Content Management

- Enables non-technical, non-HTML savvy users to create content for the Portal
- Template based content contribution and presentation
- “Site areas” and “categories” decide where in the portal content appears.
- New authoring enhancements such as ‘in line editing’ make it even easier to author site content.
- RSS Consumer



IBM

Lotus

Sites running Web Content Mgmt

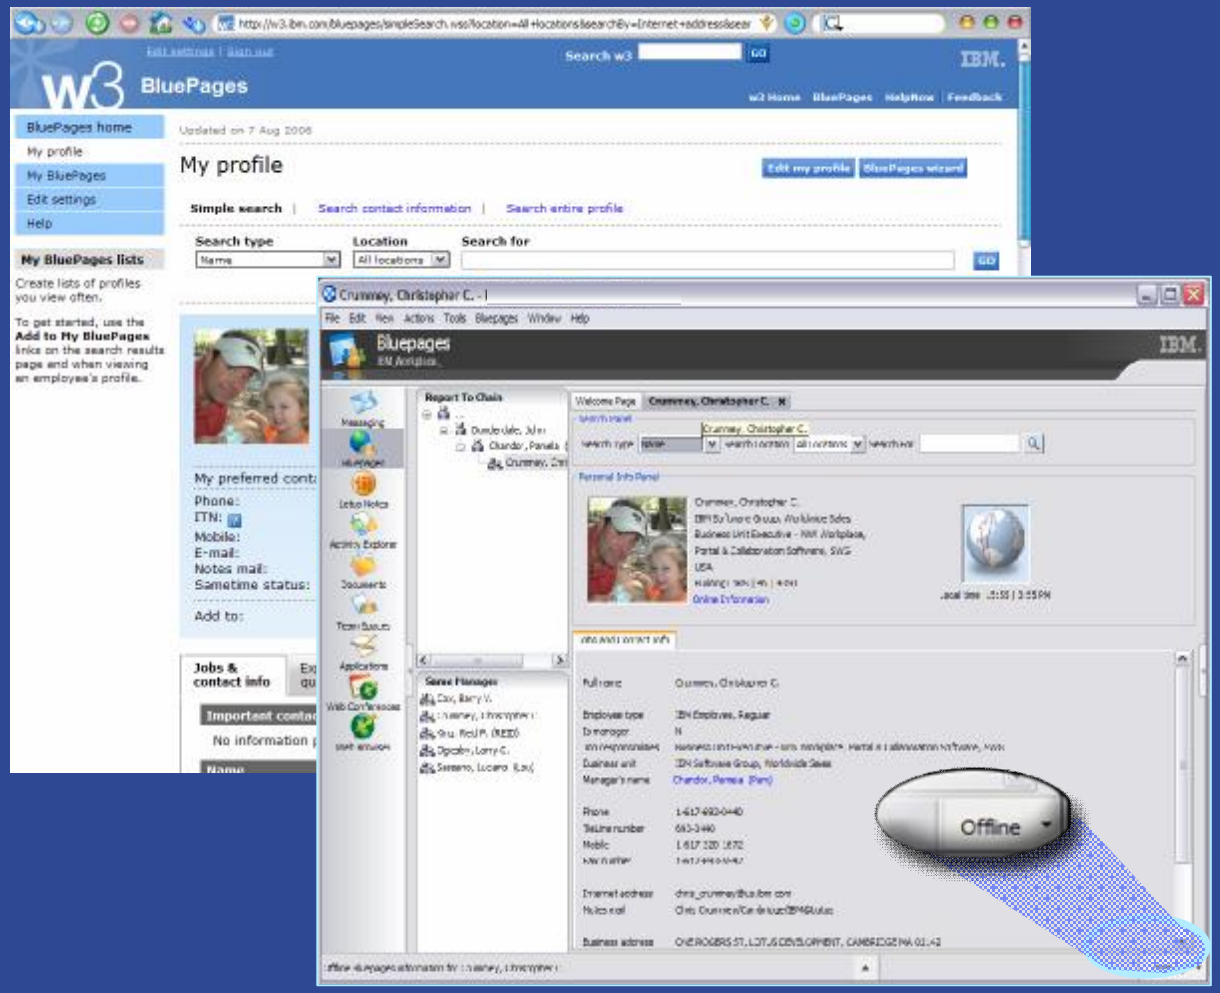
Director of Advanced Media
U.S. Tennis Association

IBM

Lotus

Expeditor 6.1
Example – Portal Bluepages to Offline Bluepages

- Extends Composite applications to the desktop
  - Runs JSR 168 portlets on the client
  - Built on eclipse
  - Managed by Portal V6.0 Server



IBM Lotus Notes 8 (formally Hannover)

- The next generation of Lotus Notes
  - Runs all existing Notes applications

- Will extend the Notes client beyond the current Notes platform
  - Support for a new class of standards-based composite applications
  - Will provide server-managed technology that can be tailored for your business.

- New collaborative services planned
  - Activity-centric computing
  - New document library services
  - New team workspaces

Web 2.0/AJAX/REST Tech Preview

In Development

- To allow smart markup to enable value add by portal, e.g. through dynamic context menus, introduce Semantic Tag support allowing portlets to tag markup fragments (e.g. people, addresses, phone numbers, documents, ...) so that portal can enable context menus and other value add based on tags

§ To enable cross-portlet interaction locally in the browser as well as with server side code, introduce Client Side C2A/Property Broker and Drag & Drop based on Semantic Tags integrated with server side property broker and C2A support

§ To demonstrate and give samples to customers for how to exploit all the above, provide Sample AJAX Portlets showcasing the new capabilities

Innovation Place on TAP
Inspire innovation with new ideas!
An idea is submitted and the workflow to evaluate the idea begins.
An interested party submits an idea for the Innovation Place team. The submitter describes the idea and provides personal information within an IBM Workplace Form. The feasibility of the idea is determined by a team Leader, and based on that outcome, the idea is accepted for development, or it is rejected. Because Document Workflow is integrated, the process to draft, review, and approve documents is built in.
Note: IBM Workplace Forms is a tech preview, and is not in the GA plan for QuickPlace Geneva.
